The Salvation Army and the Treaty of Waitangi

The Salvation Army acknowledges:

- The Treaty of Waitangi as the covenant establishing our nation on the basis of bi-cultural partnership.
- That on behalf of its multicultural membership, it has a responsibility to honour the Treaty of Waitangi, and to establish and maintain a good bi-cultural relationship.

- This we believe can be achieved by recognising Christ as the head of the Church who, through the Power of the Holy Spirit, reconciles all peoples as one.

To achieve this we will:

- Provide a forum within The Salvation Army through which Māori voices and concerns can be expressed.

- Include appropriately in worship, building and signage, the unique bi-cultural basis of our nation.
- Work towards ensuring that Māori feel acceptance and safety within The Salvation Army.

Te Ōhākī. The final words of Jesus
